Grady-White labels its newest flagship model - largest-ever for the North Carolina-based manufacturer - a luxury sport-fishing yacht. From the general reaction of media at the Miami show seeing this for the first time, few could argue that. Sophistication of design, attention to detail and some remarkable technological innovation. Its spacious cabin and cockpit have much to do with its 14-foot amidships beam. It's rated for quad Yamaha 350s on the transom.

One of many innovative features on the new 456 is a flip-up bolster that instantly changes the comfortable aft-facing bench seat over a tackle-storage console into a leaning post.

Crew and/or anglers can keep one eye on a trolling spread while they also see what's playing on the integrated transom monitor (protected by a hinged acrylic cover), whether that's course, depth or underwater camera.
