The latest addition to Grady-White's popular dual-console series, the innovative Freedom 215 features a forward-looking design and timeless style. A roomy 8' 6" beam combined with spirited SeaV2 hull performance makes a head-turning, dry-riding, versatile fishing boat. The 215 has many innovative features, like swing-away aft-seat backrests that pivot out of the way to access the swim and dockside boarding platforms. There's also a lockable starboard console compartment with tackle storage trays, four vertical rod holders and horizontal rod racks, plus a recessed cockpit shower, and a 64-quart cooler that can be plumbed as a 16-gallon livewell. The Grady-White line has a great-riding hull built on the design of C. Raymond Hunt Associates' SeaV2 hull. A pioneer in cabin-style boats since 1959, Grady-White has also built center console boats for nearly 40 years, with 10 models from 18 to 37 feet.
