Grady-White has built its reputation on the superb-handling SeaV² hull, unsinkable foam-filled construction, and consistent attention to style so luxurious and unique, it can be identified without a nameplate. That's all baked in, with fishing features foremost, and seasoned with outstanding creature comforts so the boat serves up hardcore fishing and switches to comfortable family fun in a heartbeat.

This Grady's helm accommodates two 16-inch or larger chart plotters. Comfortable placement of the Yamaha electronic throttle and shift, trim-tab switches and indicators, and flush-mounted switches makes the boat easy to operate from a seated or standing position. Add the optional Yamaha Helm Master controls with Full Maneuverability, and you get joystick steering and an autopilot. Even more maneuverability can be yours by ordering the optional bow thruster. Add both to your boat; you won't regret it.

The Canyon 306 is packed with comfortable seating. At the helm, dual bucket seats have Grady's trademark firm, resilient vinyl and ergonomically comfortable multidensity foam, with flip-up bolsters and fold-down armrests. Forward seating includes a double lounge on the front of the helm, plus wraparound seating with foldaway lounge backs on both hullsides. The windlass is standard with a through-the-stem design, and controls at the anchor locker and helm.

Grady makes its boats luxurious, but they are fishing boats first and boast all the rod holders needed to carry 50-pound-class trolling gear or 9-foot fly rods in the undergunwale storage.

The rigging station switches instantly from fishing mode to entertainment, featuring tackle storage and a prep sink, and a galley for sandbar parties. When it's time for a dinner cruise, slip down into the locking head compartment for a hot shower and change of clothes.

People choose Grady-White boats, like this Canyon 306, due to their versatile entertainment capabilities, fishing and diving qualifications, durability, performance and timeless style.
