Grady-White Fisherman 236

Triple crown winner.

Always ahead of the curve, Grady-White's lineup has things covered across the board. Versatility takes on a whole new meaning with the Fisherman 236 Center Console, which provides a platform that is comfortable and safe whether you're offshore fishing, out for a day of fun with family and friends, cruising, gunkholing or participating in watersports.

"This is a super solid sport fishing boat that is all Grady-White yet is able to incorporate any fun activity the family can experience while out on the water," says Christian Carraway, Grady-White design engineer.

Riding on the company's lauded SeaV² hull, she is a feature-rich boat on which to load a variety of standard and optional offerings. She comes turnkey-ready with a roomy cockpit, storage for rods and tackle, a 15.5-gallon aft raw water livewell, a 160-quart insulated fishbox aft, and a pair of insulated in-deck fishboxes forward and to either side, all with overboard drains.

Notable options consist of an anchor windlass with rode, line and bow roller; a portable head with an in-line macerator; Helm Master EX steering with full maneuverability; a fiberglass bow table; a casting platform insert with cushion; and 18-foot crank T-top-mounted stainless steel outriggers with carbon fiber poles. The optional deluxe lean bar is fully loaded with a backrest, lockable storage, four rod holders, a 25-gallon insulated raw water livewell under the seat with a light, a full column distribution inlet and an overboard drain with 800-gph pump, among many additional items.

"Engineering and design, innovative styling, the Fisherman 236 stays true to our core values. She is a center console with all of Grady-White's timeless appeal — that and a lot more," Carraway adds.

If you're in the market for a center console boat, downsizing, or just getting into boating, the Grady-White Fisherman 236 is a must for your shortlist. ✦
